Dear Aslan

I hope you all have had a lovely weekend and hopefully got to get out for a little bit of exercise in the sunshine.

English:

For today's work, I would like you to do some English work on IXL and look at practising spellings and tenses. These are important to use correctly in your writing and is an essential English skill. Below are a couple of links for videos for you to watch to remind yourself of tenses and what an irregular verb is.

Once you have watched these videos, have a go at doing IXL D.6, D.7 and D.8 (under the verb section).

Art:

As you have most probably seen, children across the UK have been making rainbow pictures and displaying them in their windows to spread hope and happiness.

For your art today, I would like you to create your own rainbow to display in your house. Below is a link to news round so you can get some inspiration before you start.

I have created a folder in 'Uploaded Work' on the drive so that we can share our masterpieces with one another. I can't wait to see what you have created!

Am enjoying see your chats on line too and all the lovely comments you have made about people's work. Keep them coming!

I have also created a new folder called 'Tadpole Diaries' so we can keep up with the latest news from the pond!

Take care,

Miss Scott
